MEDICINE AND PRINTING.

The last Grand Jury made a suggestion to the Board of County Commissioners that it let contracts to the lowest bidder for the office of County Physician and County Printer.

The Board decided that it would let contracts for the county printing but not for the medical attendance of the county hospital.

They claimed that the letting of contracts to treat the sick, to the lowest bidder would probably result in a poorer class of attendance; that in cases of life or death the sick needed the best that the Board in its judgment could procure.

Printing however they put on another basis holding that the county ran no such risks as in medical matters.

A resolution was passed to let the county printing to the lowest bidder. The APPEAL has no criticisms to pass upon the action of the Board, nor does it complain of the distinction made between the two professions.

A good deal has been said about the APPEAL's printing bills during the last two years, but we have never deemed it necessary to contradict any of the many wild assertions made regarding the matter.

The county printing, during the past year, has been lower than any previous year in the history of the county, and the records show it.

The members of the Board, Messrs. Martin, Atherton, and Morris, will endorse this proposition, and they will also state that it was never done more satisfactorily to the Board.

The APPEAL will state for the benefit of everyone interested in this matter, that our contract has one more month to run, and the amount paid it by the county for that month will be $16 75. If there is any printer in this county who wants to take the contract off our hands, he can get it by calling at this office during business hours.

THE GOVERNOR'S SPLEEN.

The action of Gov. Adams in making his appointments on the Agricultural Board of this District is reported in the local columns.

The Governor seems utterly unable to rise to the level of the most ordinary situation and seems to consider that his office is simply to further his political plans and punish his political enemies.

His shabby treatment of Mr. Sweeney is a fair sample of how he has lowered the gubernatorial office for nearly four years.

Mr. Sweeney was a friend politically and socially of the late Matt Cannavan, and to hound every friend of Cannavan's seems of late the high of the Governor's ambition. When such a petty feeling is carried into so non-partisan a proposition as appointing Directors of a District Fair, it would seem that the limit of peevish temper and microscopic disposition had been reached.

That Letter of St. Paul's.

The historian doesn't know where this story had its actual origin, but it was "told true" on a recent ocean voyage to enliven the company:

A gentleman who had indulged quite too freely, and hadn't had the discovery made for him in season to get home, was helped home by a good Samaritan. He was very grateful in an exhilarating way, and asked his benefactor's name.

"My name?" said the gentleman, "O I'm St. Paul."

The inebriate steadied himself by a final effort, and looked dreamily at his departing friend.

"I shay," said he "St. Paul, did you ever get an answer to that long letter you wrote to Ephesians?"—Boston Record.

—A gentleman at Reading, lately returned from a visit to Washington, speaks of many curious things he saw in the Patent Office. Two of them he says are particularly worthy of note. The first is a small, hollow cone of gold, shaped like a capsule, at the bottom of which is a slide from which projects something in the nature of a fish hook. At the top is an eye, to which is fastened a silk cord. It is intended as a trap for tapeworms. The hook is baited with something to tempt the appetite of the worm and the capsule swallowed. As soon as his wormship bites, the slide closes and fastens him, the apparatus is drawn up by the fisher at the other end and there you are——Pawning is said to be "still hunting" in the East. Charlie Stoddard is the St. John who cries ahead of him in the wilderness.
